Second Jubilee Slated May 21

Tickets go on sale today at three Corsicana locations for the second Golden Circle Jubilee.

The Jubilee will be held Friday night May 21 at the Drane Middle School Auditorium. Green's Western Wear, Sack-It and Pack-It, and Al Mintz Gulf Station will handle advance tickets for the big country music event. One of the oldest and most popular country music bands has been added to the cast of Jubilee for this show, "The Versatiles", featuring the piano work of leader Eugene Cumbie.

Also added to the show will be a variety act, "The Zarlingtons," who do a comedy and magic act. They are veterans of vaudeville, radio, tent shows, and television.

Rounding out the list of bands that will be performing on the show for the first time will be "The Rhythmettes." This is a female country music band whose members come from Kaufman and Richland.

School Board To Talk Zones

The Corsicana Independent School District Board of Trustees tonight will discuss the rearrangement of several school zone boundaries to equalize student enrollment for the 1971-72 school year and tuition for transfer students according to Joe Seale, school superintendent.

Meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the school administration building at 312 W. 1 Ave., the board will also: accept bids on instructional and maintenance supplies, receive recommendations for nominees to serve on the board of equalization for 1971; and discuss the selection of an attorney to represent the school district and other routine business.

The meeting is open to the public.

Filing Deadline For City Post

The Deadline for filing for the city commissioner post vacated by Sue Youngblood is 5 p.m. Saturday.

John Carlock is the only candidate to have filed.

Election Judges Supplies Ready

Election judges for the May 18 Constitutional Amendments election can pick up their supplies between 8 a.m. and 12 noon Saturday in the Navarro County Clerk's office, according to H. Clyve Riddels, county clerk.

The election judges are: Mrs. Sedalia Wynn, Albert Fullerton, J. D. Nettles, Mrs. Loyd Metcalf, J. W. Cunningham, Almer Renfrow, E. M. Sheppard, Sammie Saunders, G. H. Wear, B. R. Bonner, R. D. Mabry and Paul Moore.

Dallas Postal Center Cancelled

DALLAS (AP)—Dallas won't be a regional postal center any more when the U.S. Postal Service reorganization plan becomes effective.

Instead, Memphis, Tenn., will take over the job as Southern Postal Region for 11 states, including Texas.

John P. Mayfield Honored

The new Women's Residence Hall on the campus of John Brown University in Siloam Springs, Ark., was dedicated and named for John P. Mayfield and his late wife, Jule. The dedication ceremony took place Saturday, May 8th, immediately following the Commencement exercises in which Dr. Mayfield received the honorary degree. Doctor of Laws from John Brown University. Dr. and Mrs. Mayfield have been long time friends of the University and have supported the scholarship program for many years. Dr. Mayfield presently resides in Corsicana.

Wilson Calls Redistricting Proposal 'Unconstitutional'

By SAM PENDERGRAST
Editor of The Sun

The term "slight variances" claimed by House Redistricting Committee framers of proposed realignment of Congressional districts in Texas can't be applied to attitudes of all the affected lawmakers, The Daily Sun learned today in talks with Sen. Charles Wilson of Lufkin, Corsicana area solon, and Rep. Jack Hawkins of Groesbeck.

Sen. Wilson called the proposed redistricting map unconstitutional and absurd and said parts of it applicable to his area are an attempt to line up a political plum for Rep. Clyde Haynes of Orange.

Sen. Wilson told The Daily Sun "They've taken Cong. Dowdy's Second Congressional District and left it intact, with the exception that they have removed Angelina County from it and put it into Cong. Teague's District. But Angelina County is well within the district, so the only way they could justify the removal was by taking out these other three counties (Limestone, Trinity, and Houston Counties) to get to it."

Wilson said the chairman of the House Redistricting committee and the Congressional Subcommittee (Rep. Haynes) "wants to run for Congress. He's (Haynes's) an old friend of mine, and I have personal affection for him—but if he wants to run for Congress, he ought to just run for Congress and not punish 80,000 East Texans simply because he is afraid to run against me."

He explained that there has been much speculation that Cong. Dowdy may not run for re-election to his Congressional Dist. 2 seat. "In the event that it was vacated, then I intended to be a candidate—or I was seriously considering being a candidate—as were many others," Wilson said.

The effect of the redistricting plan proposed to the House yesterday would be to force Wilson to run against Cong. Teague, while Haynes could run for Dowdy's vacated seat, if Dowdy chooses not to seek re-election.

"Now, I'm not asking anybody for special favors," Wilson told The Sun. "And I don't want to cut anybody out of that district, just because they may be a strong candidate. All I want is for the district to be drawn in the fairest, most beneficial manner for the people that live there...and then let the best man win."

He went on "I question the constitutionality of the over-all House (redistricting) plan. I think it was drawn as a self-serving plan for individuals. I don't think it makes constitutional sense. They split Tarrant County into four different districts...they have five

Women Voters To Talk Proposed Amendments

The Corsicana League of Women Voters will discuss two of the four proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution soon to be decided upon by Texas voters in an open meeting to be held Friday in the sky Room at First National Bank in Corsicana.

Mrs. John Remonte will serve as moderator for the discussion of Propositions 1 and 3. Mrs. J. R. Billingley, president of the local league, will discuss the first which would set up an 11-member commission to issue and enforce ethical rules for all state officials and possibly even capitol reporters.

Amendment 3 which deals with welfare reforms favored by the Corsicana League of Women Voters after study of welfare needs in the state will be disucssed by Mrs. Charles High.

All League members are urged to attend the meeting to which local government officials have been invited. Others interested in learning more about the ramifications of the two amendments will be welcome, Mrs. Billingsley states.

Redistricting Plan Okayed

AUSTIN (AP) — A congressional redistricting plan with only a tiny population variance between districts has been approved by a House committee.

"We feel we have a tolerance the courts will accept, 2 to 2½ per cent from top to bottom," a spokesman said.

The plan approved by the House Redistricting Committee pairs two West Texas congressmen and fails to cut district lines for the Houston-Beaumont area.

Rep. Delwin Jones of Lubbbock, committee chairman, said he hoped the House would vote on the bill by next Monday afternoon "at the latest."

Senators also will have their own congressional redistricting bill, and the final map will be drawn by a 10-man House-Senate Conference Committee.

The bill would put U.S. Reps. Graham Purcell, Wichita Falls Democrat, and Bob Price, Pampa Republican, in a single district, forcing them to run against each other if both seek re-election.

Jones said the districts fell easily within the U.S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote rule.

The most populous district, with 469,379, would be that of U.S. Rep. Bob Poage, Waco. Least populous, with 463,908 would be in Dallas County.

A large chunk of Southeast Texas, including Harris (Houston), Jefferson (Beaumont-Port Arthur), Galveston, Chambers, Brazoria and Fort Bend counties was left without district lines. Instead, the area is designated on the map as having four congressmen running at large within the area.

Jones said exact lines would be drawn later in conference.

The area would receive the additional congressman Texas was allocated because of its population growth since 1960.

Harris County now has three congressmen, and U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks of Beaumont represents Jefferson, Galveston and Chambers counties.

Rep. Clyde Haynes of Vidor, chairman of the subcommittee on congressional redistricting, said efforts were made to cut Harris County into new districts. But he indicated sharp differences among Houston legislators blocked agreement, and time ran out.

"We felt it would be better to get it to conference," Haynes said.

Rep. Tom Bass of Houston protested the failure to draw boundary lines for Harris County congressmen.

"I would have thought that was the responsibility of the committee," Bass said.

Rep. Zan Holmes of Dallas also voted against the bill in protest to a "mid-cities district" drawn between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Based on the equal population standard of 466,530 persons per congressional district, Dallas County would be entitled to nearly three congressmen by itself. Instead, the county got two congressmen and would have to share three more with two rural districts and eastern Tarrant County.

Bexar County (San Antonio) would have one congressman and would share two others with largely rural districts.

To the surprise of many, the district of U.S. Rep. John Dowdy, Athens Democrat who faces federal bribery charges, was left largely intact. Dowdy had been considered vulnerable to "pairing" with another East Texas congressman to even up population.

Haynes is from Orange County, which would be in Dowdy's district, and has indicated an interest in running for congress.

Because of population shifts, the committee had the choice of pairing either two East Texas or two West Texas congressmen. They chose to look to the west.

Purcell's district was shifted to the west, with five of his North Central Texas counties detached to bring the district of U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts, McKinney Democrat, up to the population standard.

House Speaker Gus Mutscher, whom some felt would have a congressional

Amendment 1

Do Legislators Need Watchdog, Raise?

AUSTIN AP—Texans would like to feel confident their lawmakers can resist temptation and act only in the public interest.

But this year's so-called "stock scandal" raised doubts among many.

Some commenators have said for years the voters are asking for corrupt legislators when they pay them what amounts to a virtual proverty wage of $400 a month-before taxes.

Others have urged a watchdog agency to keep lawmakers on the straight and narrow.

Texas voters decide next Tuesday on a constitutional amendment designed to give legislators both a pay raise and a set of enforceable rules of conduct.

Proposition No. 1 would set up an 11 member commission to issue and enforce ethical rules for all state officials-and possibly even Capitol reporters.

The same commission also would consist of three appointees each of the state Supreme Court chief justice, presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals and the chairman of the Judicial Qualifications commission. One senator and one representative elected by their colleagues also would serve.

Ethical rules issued by the commission would take effect automatically unless specifically rejected by the legislature..

The commission would investigate alleged ethical violations and report to the "appropriate state agency, official, legislative body, grand jury or district attorney."

Pay raises recommended by the commission would take effect only if both Houses of the legislature approved them, with each member's vote a matter of official record.

Ethics suddenly became a prime issue when the Federal Securities and Exhange Commission alleged in January that rich financiers smoothed the way for a banking bill with quick stock profits for top state leaders.

Battle lines formed in recent weeks, with share divisions between "pros" and "Cons".

Dr. Albert J. McCall, president heads a new statewide committee supporting the amendment. On the committee are people such as Dr. Jimmy Allen, president of the Baptist General Convention of Texas; former Sen. Ralph Yarborough; Dallan Graham, director of the Texas Catholic Conference; and heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey.

"It is essential that an ethics commission be established," McCall said, "so that Texans can enlarge their confidence in their lawmakers."

Republicans generally have opposed the amendment, which GOP Rep. Maurice Angly of Austin called, "Nothing more than a sham...It is a gimmick to obtain a pay raise."

Out strongly for the amendment were the Texas Public Employes Association and the Texas State Teachers Association, groups which have fared well with the legislature.

"The members of the legislature are now engaged in almost a full time job fulfilling the commitments of their elected office. We feel it is time they received adequate compensation," said teachers President Jerome Chapman.

"For a little fame, lots of hard work, frequent abuse, infrequent appreciation and $4,800 a year, would you leave your home and go to Austin temporarily?" asked teachers' association Director L. P. Sturgeon recently.

The state AFL-CIO executive board called the measure "a weak, milqueoast approach to legislative ethics" and asserted that "Under the cloud of suspicion that already hangs over this sesion of the legislature, any attempt to 'put something over' on the public is unthinkable."

Since 1960, voters have turned down three proposals to raise legislative pay.

Gov. Preston Smith told the lawmakers in 1969 that doing something about the public's "conflict of interest" suspicions might be what it takes to get their pay raised. Now the two-ethics plus pay-are joined in one package.

Most legislators fervently hope the combination clicks.

'I Didn't Expect This'

Willie Hodge, manager of the Corsicana Texas Employment Commission office since 1960 was slightly overwhelmed Friday when his staff surprised him with a silver tray presented by veteran staffer Mrs. LaDelle Green to go along with the decorated cake denoting his 25th anniversary with TEC in Corsicana Saturday, May 9. See accompanying story. (Sun Photo by Monte Smith)

Hodge Celebrates 25 Years at TEC

By BETTY JEAN CLAY
Sun Staff Writer

W. H. "Willie" Hodge has spent a lifetime helping other people find jobs and employers find the worker they need to fill a particular need.

"There's nothing glamorous about me or my job," he protested in modesty Friday when contacted by a Daily Sun reporter he's known for years.

It was his second "shock" of the day, you might say.

A short time earlier when the office force of the Texas Employment Commission, 422 W. 2nd Ave., gathered in their employes snack bar for the morning coffee break, Hodge was surprised by his staff. Waiting for him was a handsomely decorated cake proclaiming the observance Saturday, May 9, of his 25 years of service with the TEC. He was flattered a little more, he admits, when the staff presented a tribute of their esteem for "the boss" a gleaming silver serving tray which he in turn presented to his schoolteacher wife, Alice, who teaches at Rice.

He had hardly gotten over this unexpected fuss in his behalf when this writer walked in with the greeting "Hear you're having an anniversary around here, anything to it?"

"Who told you?" he squeaked "This is too much!" displaying his admitted embarrasment.

Manager of the Corsicana office since Nov. 1, 1960 Hodge started out with the office May 8, 1946 right after the end of World War II when it was a part of the United States Employment Service. In the early days of the war following the outbreak of hostilities, many state agencies were transferred to federal control to expedite the movement of agency office personnel across state lines as the need arose.

The "transfer" back to the jurisdiction of the state and operation of the employment office as the TEC took place the following November.

"It's really been the only job I've had, just about," he confessed, noting that following his graduation from Mildred High School, he had worked about a year at the old Air Activities of Texas School, a training school at Corsicana Municipal Airport for training pilots for the military. He then entered the Coast Guard for three years and on being discharged and returning home to Corsicana he went to work as an employe interviewer.

Their office at that time was located at 114 W. 4th Ave. next to the Corsicana Laundry with a staff of six under then Manager W. B. Reedy, who was killed at a railroad crossing in the early 1950s. Following Reedy, Hodge worked under three other managers, Burney Parker, Ben Dixon and Charles Borsellino, before he was promoted in charge in 1960.

Today, in their modern new spacious office into which the TEC moved in September, 1969, Hodge has a staff of 10 working with him in the perpetual task of "finding jobs for people and people for jobs listed with us by employers." The staff Hodge supervises includes three employe interviewers, one farm placement interviewer, a job counselor, a claims examiner, one interviewing clerk, one office clerk and one community service aide.

Hodge has no way of estimating exactly how many people he's interviewed who came to the office seeking assistance in finding a job but he conceded it possibly would run several hundred thousand. Over the 25-year span, he has seen Navarro county shift from a rural farming economy to an industrial economy.

"It has been interesting work and a rewarding task to help people find jobs and to assist industrial plants coming into Corsicana find people for their work force.

"Employment in this county is very good. Working closely with the Chamber of Commerce on industrial plant staffing, I can see we have more jobs in this county than ever and we have been very pleased with the job openings employers have provided to keep employment good in our area," he said. At the same time, he noted with pride, claims for unemployment compensation have been low and this is a healthy economic sign for the county.

The Eureka native has lived most of his life in the Mildred area and still does, residing on the Camp Wanica road with his wife, the former Alice Whitten of Mildred, and their youngest son, Terry, 18, a senior this year at Mildred. Their older son, Harry, 21, is a student at Georgetown's Southwestern University.

Active in the Kiwanis Club, Hodge has worked in United Fund campaigns, Chamber of Commerce activities and holds membership in the Texas Public Employes Assn., and International Association of Personnel Employment Security. He's a Methodist.

"I'm just a plain vanilla-type fellow," Hodge insists.

That's the best! Willie!

Mrs. C. L. Williamson, Mrs. Mabel Payton, Mrs Tillie Manahan and Mrs. J. D. Kirgan were in Waco Tuesday.

Aunt Louise

Friday I was in Mile's Furniture Company waiting to see Basil Coe about an ad when Charles Barnaby walked up to me and said that he had a customer that he would like for me to meet.

Smiling graciously was Mrs. Jewel Gibson, mother of Dr. Louis Gibson. She and her husband, F. A., have retired from their professions and have moved to our town to be near their children and grandchildren.

Jewel has taught school for the past forty-one years, the past ten at Sam Houston in Huntsville. She said she enjoyed every minute of her work and LOVED the younger generation. I asked her what her thoughts were on long hair, side-burns, beards etc.

Her reply? "I'm a great admirer of Burl Ives. In class I told the boys that their hair looked clean, their beards were attractive, but I sometimes wonder what their FACES look like."

Jewel has written a book "Get Out Of Town Mr. Brown" based on the life of William Brown who was a newspaper publisher (Inconoclasta) in Waco in the middle 1890's, and had a great fight with Baylor University. The book is now in the hands of producer Paul Baker at the Dallas Theatre Center. She is to go in for a reading or possible casting in the near future.

I told Jewel she had such an interesting story and background that perhaps I should turn it over to our editorial department.

She replied, "Bah! James Street didn't finish the eighth grade. I'll settle for a mention in your column."

Welcome to Corsicana Jewel and F.A. Gibson and Happy Days Ahead!

It's an ill wind that blows no good .....

Last week I was getting out of my car parked in front of the Corsicana Federal Savings & Loan Association. I had a lay-out in my notebook, and be dad gummed if the wind didn't actually lift a pasted home on the ad right out of my car. It flew high into the air toward the post office. I yelled, "Help! Please somebody, catch my house!"

Crazy? Who? Me? I was WILD.

Mrs. L. W. Stanley, 2524 North Beaton Street, retrieved it for me. We were both laughing so hard at the stares and looks of the people in cars and pedestrians alike, that I don't remember if I thanked her.

Speaking of nice ladies, I do owe Anna Blanding an apology. In last Thursday's column I said she was using a FOLDING GOLF STOOL. In print it came out as FOLDING GOLD STOOL. Someone hit the wrong key ... probably ME! Now, who wants a Gold stool ... coins, yes!

Frank Gnoza, Collin Street Bakery, tells the following ...

Dewey Scruggs, nicknamed "Mayor" of Purdon, left the bakery after putting in a hard day's work. Believe Frank told me it was a week ago last Wednesday. When he got home he found lightening had struck six of his cows and killed 'em dead!

Frank says, "Now, Aunt Louise, you being a famous reporter (HA!) and all that, you oughta know some big shot in the Capitol or White House who just might reimburse Dewey for them cows."

Dewey, why don't you call GENE SEARS?

Frank goes on to say that there is a town called CHICKEN BRISTLE. It is located some five or six miles Northwest of Dawson. He says Eddie King bought some land out there near Lum Renfro's place.

Folks, all I can say is that Frank bakes GOOD PIES. Smile.

Mothers are funny creatures, aren't they?

When the twins were small we had a mamma cat named DESDEMONIA who gave birth to seven little kittens. One day we came home to find her bleeding, weak, and near death. A mean old tom cat had tried to kill her kittens. But DESDEMONIA won the battle and we nursed her back to health!

Kids! Remember this story and be good to Mom ... you ain't likely to find a substitute.

Come off it Dad ... YOUR day is in June.

Happy Mother's Day ... and may each of you have a very special blessing today!

Congratulations to co-worker, Tim Leifeste, Managing Editor. While fishing at Navarro Mills last Saturday he caught a Black Bass weighing over five pounds or nearly six. He was so excited when he was telling me about it that I never did get a definite answer. Anyway, you probably saw his picture in Monday's paper. I'd be pleased to lug one in that size just any 'ole time.

As usual I went by Sparkman's Bait House Tuesday to check on "catches" within the Circle. L. B. said the sand bass were biting from fair to very good at Cedar Creek, also fair Crappie fishing. Reports from Navarro Mills were black bass, crappie and brim. L. B. and Big Bob didn't have too much of a day, caught one mud cat and some brim. To avoid getting in HOT WATER myself I won't publish who caught which. Smile.

Mrs. O. D. Bailey, 1323 Hackberry, stopped me the other day and asked me if I'd ever seen twins before.

I replied, "You betcha."

She said, "These are my pride and joy, Shelly and Kelly (twin girls) and their brother, Paul, age five."

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bailey who live in Rice.

Denton Brown's grandson, Jonathan, lost one of his "many" pets. He was very sad over it's death and wanted me to "put it in the paper."

I was trying to figure out an ad (see on this page) with his grandfather and Jonathan said, "I know what to tell the readers. Just tell them they'd better get their radiators FIXED before they go on vacation because if it leaks they might not be near a water hole to get a bucket of water if the radiator goes dry."

Jonathan is young to be so helpful ... wonder what his chosen trade or profession will be when he grows up!

"Dear Aunt Louise, I hope that is the right way to address you. (It is, I don't know who they are talking to when someone addresses me as Mrs. Foster). I read your column every time it is in the paper and I enjoy it very much. Here are some 'ole time sayings you might want to publish ... It's growing like Jonah's gourd. Also my grandmother used to say to me, Every tub must stand on its own bottom, meaning we are all responsible for our own actions ... Our sins are buried in the sea of God's forgetfulness ... Procrastination is the thief of time.

I have passed you two or three times at the Mall or Post Office, but you and I both seemed to be in a hurry." signed, Mrs. Fay Langley.

Thank you for writing. Next time just stop me. I don't need to hurry. Would be much more pleasant to meet you. O.K.?

Yes, I had a nice Mother's day. Was the first time I had not been with son, Pat. He and wife, Sharon, were not able to come home.

Was sad too. My good friend and fishing buddy, Dolly Jameson's father died early that morning, Mr. J. A. Cruson, Evergreen Nursing Home.

During the stormy weather last Sunday night I couldn't go to sleep so I started fishing around looking for something to read. Ran across a 1971 Alamnac given to me the first of the year by the Corsicana Federal Savings & Loan. Facts I did not know until I read ... about one-seventh of the world's entire population lives in India ... Library of Congress in Washington is the world's largest .. About one-third of the world's area was once covered by forests ... The U.S. has eighty per cent of the world's motor vehicles and the U.N. estimates the world population is increasing by FORTY MILLION a year. Interesting?

Thoughts worth Banking
By Sir Humphrey Davy

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles, and kindnesses, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.

It was Mark Twain who said, "The only safe and sure way to destroy an enemy is to make him your friend."

Be good, and do write SOON. See you in Sunday's Corsicana Daily Sun.

Unrepentant Sin Leads to Moral Decline— Life A Trying Ground Where We Learn to Make Important Decisions—The Ancient Teachings Make This Plain

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

God loves his people. Not just his Chosen People, the Jews, but all people in every age and everywhere.

The International Sunday School Lesson for May 16 emphasizes this truth and is entitled "God's Love for People." The passage of Scripture to be studied (Hosea 11:1-9) is taken from the Book of the Prophet Hosea, who is often called the prophet of love. Under the leadership of Jeroboam I the ten northern tribes had separated themselves from the two southern tribes of Benjamin and Judah. Jeroboam made the fatal mistake of embracing idolatry for himself and his people. He set up two golden calves and bade his people worship them for these, he said, were the gods that had led them out of the bondage of Egypt.

Under such blatant idolatry the people of the Northern Kingdom fell into all sorts of sins. The powerful enslaved the weak. The rich lorded it over the poor. If history was to teach any lesson, it would teach these misled and idolatrous people of the Northern Kingdom that their idolatry, sin, oppression and defiance of all good principles would lead them at last to national ruin.

The End Comes

This eventually at length came to pass. The Northern Kingdom was wiped out of existence by the Assyrians, cruelest people of antiquity.

Amos was a humble shepherd living in the Southern Kingdom but making business trips at times into the Northern Kingdom. What he saw there of idolatry and immorality shocked him. Hosea, the prophet of love, lived in the Northern Kingdom. He emphasized the fact that God loves his people and is bent on leading them from slavery to freedom, from sin to repentance and salvation. Hosea took his own unfortunate married life, and using his unfaithful wife Gomer as an example, he declared that God would lead the Northern Kingdom (Ephraim) back into righteousness if they would permit Him to do so.

The whole of this lesson (May 16) is on God's love for his people. The Memory Selection is from the writings of the Prophet Jeremiah: "I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you" (Jeremiah 31:3). This lesson deals with God's love for people and the earnest pleas of the Prophet Hosea that the people of the Northern Kingdom would turn from their evil ways and receive not divine condemnation but divine blessing.

Eventually A Reckoning

History does not repeat itself in detail. What it does, however, is, that as nations respond to the moral law or disregard it, they are dealt with by the Creator of all things and persons. Judgment is a solemn reality. God's desire, however, is not that the wicked be punished but that they turn from their evil ways, seek righteousness, give themselves and all that they have and are to the worship of the Creator. This does not mean that they must be endlessly urging their contemporaries to repentance but that wherever they are they must stand as persons loyal to divine righteousness and opposed both to evil and injustice.

This makes the Bible the timeless book it has become. Recent historians have pointed out that of the many civilizations which have gone to ruin their final destruction was due to the fact that they did not place sufficient emphasis on the spiritual aspects of life. Both for the individual and the nation righteousness is essential. No one needs to fear the ultimate judgment of God against sin, for all who seek to live a righteous life, who arise after every fall and press on toward the doing of God's will can be sure of salvation. "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world but that the world through him might be saved" (John 3:17).

The Essentials

Jesus gathered all his teachings about the center of repentance and love. To him God was and forever will be the Heavenly Father. His desire is not to punish his mistaken and evil children but to save them. A distraught world today needs to remember this basic Biblical truth and to take hope as regards the future. "Now are we the sons of God and it doth not yet appear what we shall be" (I John 3:2). The God of Love is seeking to save us. The Prophets who lived and taught before the birth of Christ emphasized the fact of salvation. When Jesus Christ came to earth men saw in him the fulfillment of God's loving purpose.

God is apparently using every nation on earth to teach great and necessary lessons for the betterment of mankind. From the patriarch Abraham to the most humble Christian believer today God has worked to redeem his people. The word "gospel" means "good news." The best news mankind can ever hear is that God wants to save the sinner from the ravages and ruin of his sin.

SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS

We must obey God rather than men.

—Acts 5:29

Where law ends, tyranny begins.

—William Pitt

Things do not turn up in this world until someone turns them up.

—Garfield

Don't stay away from church because you think it's full of hypocrites. There's always room for one more.

New truth is seldom received with unanimous approval and acclaim.

Fear not, little flock, for it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.

—Luke 12:32

Social Security Paychecks Up

AUSTIN— When Social Security payments go up in June, virtually all recipients of state public assistance for the aged, blind and disabled in Texas will benefit by a slight raise in income.

State Welfare Commissioner Burton G. Hackney said Monday that the majority of those affected will be recipients of Old Age Assistance, but that recipients of the two smaller state programs—Aid to the bland and aid to the permanently and totally disabled—also will benefit to a lesser degree.

Hackney said that changes in the state's assistance standards will have these effects on Old Age Assistance payments in Texas:

—Most recipients drawing Social Security will receive smaller state assistance checks beginning in June, but at the same time Social Security payments to these individuals will increase and the combination of the two sources of income will amount to an additional $4 per month.

—Many other recipients, who have no Social Security benefits, will receive $4 a month more in their old age assistance checks in June.

—Some, as a result of Social Security increases, no longer will be eligible for state assistance.

Those who will no longer be eligible, representing a small percentage of the total caseload, are already receiving relatively high Social Security benefits and have comparatively small "unmet needs" which entitled them to only minimal state assistance grants. Their higher Social Security benefits will be sufficient to make them ineligible for continued state aid.

However, Hackney said these individuals will not automatically be removed from the Old Age Assistance rolls. They will receive their state assistance grants as usual in June, and each case will be reviewed individually to determine whether the recipient's "unmet needs" have changed. After this individual case review, state assistance checks will be stopped for those people found to be no longer eligible.

Assistance standards in the aged, blind and disabled programs were raised by the State Board of Public Welfare after Congress voted a 10 per cent increase in Social Security benefits.

The welfare board authorized a $4 monthly increase in standards of assistance for the old age program and a $1 monthly increase in standards for the blind and disabled programs.

State standards were raised because Federal law, while providing for certain exemptions, requires states to consider all income—including Social Security benefits—in determining the amount of state assistance grants. Raising standards of its own programs enables Texas to spread benefits among as many recipients as possible, whether they receive Social Security or not, Hackney said.

Navarro Mills Fish Count Plentiful Says Gerganess

(Editor's Note: This information is supplied by John Gerganess, Game Management Officer in Corsicana, in response to the many hundreds of inquiries concerning the fish population at Navarro Mills. Since a story appeared in the Waco News Tribune on April 14, in Earl Golding's "Field and Stream" column, Gerganess has been flooded with calls and letters. The reference was a quote from Bill Gurley after he and Pete Wilkins fished the lake. "Navarro Mills is going to be a dead lake if it isn't re-stocked after this year. There's no way it can get a spawn this year ... and it didn't get one last year. There are some big fish in it, but not many fish", said Gurley.)

Due to the many phone calls and questions regarding the Black Bass population, questions in reference to the Black Bass losing their spawn last year and the probability of that happening again this year, and also the need for a restocking program for Navarro Mills Lake, —has decided me to try to answer the many interested Sportsmen in the Navarro County area, of the conditions of Lake Navarro Mills in regards to the Black Bass, that I find in my regular daily and weekly patrol duties on the lake.

First let me assure you that from the numbers of Black Bass that I check each week, especially the different sizes, indicate a good fish population at the present time and of very little need for a restocking program. Bass from ½ lb. to 4, 5, 6 and even 8 lbs., yearling bass, and others indicate a good healthy bass environment, and population.

To date in respect to the Black Bass on and in Navarro Mills Reservoir, from my personal observation, in my weekly patrol of the lake all thru the year, not just once in a while, I have checked hundreds of fishermen and their creels of various fish taken from the above lake. At the present time I have seen four different sizes of Black Bass taken from the lake. Quite a number of crappie fishermen although they are fishing for crappie, will take Black Bass on the live minnow. Since Black Bass do feed on live minnows and even perch, along with the artificial baits.

This year and also last year I have checked a lot of Black Bass around 8 to 10 inches long, some 1½ to 2 lbs. and some in the 5, 6 and 7 lb. class along with a few weighing over 8 lbs. and two that went over 10 lbs. I can assure you that there are some large bass in the lake.

But anytime the fish population of one species shows up in about 4 or 5 different sizes, you can be pretty well assured that the fish productivity is doing well and as it should. Also I have checked several Comm Trotline Fishermen, who have caught large and small Black Bass on their lines.

Now due to the very unstable weather we have had in this and other areas, this year, such as high winds, one norther after another, keeping the water temperatures down, and winds keeping the water murkey, there have been less Black Bass caught so far this year. The water has just recently got up to temperatures suitable for fish spawning.

Weekend before last which would be April 24, and 25th, although there were not many Black Bass Fishermen on the lake, I, while on patrol checked at least 2 dozen Black Bass, mostly (small around 3 to 4 lbs). to at least 15 or 20 bass boats. This weekend May 1 and 2nd, I also checked a good number of Black Bass, from about 1½ lbs to about 3 lbs, while checking crappie fishermen creels during the time I was patroling the lake for game and fish vios and water safety vios.

But to get more technical information I asked the Dept. Biologist that work Navarro Mills Lake, to give me a run down on the bass population. The recorded information was sent me and it is as follows:—

December of 1969 thru seining and netting checks by the biologist, showed that Black Bass had good spawning success and averaged 4.1 inches in length. In June of 1970 a five minute collection with the department electroshocking boat took 5 bass that averaged 1.9 lbs. During November, the cove Rotenone treatment in Herons Branch in a 3.5 acrea area, 27 bass were collected, and they averaged 1.6 lbs.

The same treatment in November 1970, collection took 34 Black Bass from 5 inches to 18 inches long. 23 of these bass were between 5 inches and 7 inches long, indicating excellent spawning success in 1970. Also for the crappie fishermen, —A December netting collection showed that white crappie averaged 0.36 pounds, and made up around 60 per cent of the fish population, which is a normal population.

Again in November 1970 a collection which took 238 crappie, 3 inches to 12 inches, with 150 of them, — 3 to 4 inches long shows an excellent crappie spawn.

The above information confirms what I have stated above of all the different sizes of Black Bass checked in fishermens creels, which indicates a good spawn for 1969 and 1970 and a good Black Bass population. So from the above very little would be gained by a stocking program.

Now on the other hand some fresh water from a good rain, some warm termperatures and less wind, I believe will do more for the bass fishermen and also the crappie fishermen.

Also please note that I have checked a lot of fishermen this spring with striped bass from 6 inches to the largest 5½ lbs. Which is also another good game fish for the various fishermen. They have been taken on minnows and also artificial bait.

I sincerely hope this information will answer a lot of questions, regards to the fish population and productivity in Navarro Mills Lake.

Obituaries

For Nursing Homes

Volunteer Services Seek New Recruits

During the month of May which has been officially proclaimed by County Judge Jenneth Douglas as Senior Citizen Month in Navarro County, the Volunteer Services Program recently organized by the Health and Aging Committee of the Program Building Council is seeking additional volunteers for the activities being carried to five nursing homes in the county.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Margaret Jorgenson, chairman of the program, and Mrs. Douglas Presley, coordinator, regular recreational activities, including handcrafts and group singing have been introduced at Mel Haven, Twilight, Paulyne's and Evergreen in Corsicana and at Maywood Manor in Kerens.

Any interested citizen who would like to join the Volunteer Services Program may contact Mrs. Presley at 872-3894 to coordinate schedules and learn of needs for services in the nursing homes.

Information sheets compiled by members of the Health and Aging Committee, of which Mrs. Percy Varnell is chairman and Mrs. Gertrude Dryamn co-chairman, as a prelude to the formation of the Volunteer Services Committee, from interviews with administrators and residents of the home revealed a high interest in the following areas:

Creative - cooking, knitting, crocheting, singing and sewing; Physical - walking, outing, social evening; Social Service - visiting, special celebrations, birthdays, holidays, movies, color slides, book reviews and religious services.

As the survey indicated, there is a wide variety of areas in which volunteers may offer their services with gratifying results.

Volunteers recruited during February and March who participated in a special training program organized by Mrs. Jorgenson on April 7 in the Lone Star Flame Room are already involved in the activities programs which have been inaugurated in all five of the nursing homes.

Mrs. Varnell, director of the Navarro County Chapter of American Red Cross, gave a summary of its services, and related its program of aid to that projected by the Volunteer Services Committee.

Mrs. Marion McAdams, RN, director of nursing services at Mel Haven Convalescent Home, presented her views on "Understanding the Aged", and Dr. Will Miller, director of the Corsicana-Navarro County Health Unit, addressed the group on the topic "Understanding the Ill".

Other training program participants included Miss Irene Boozer, a former WAC and retired teacher as well as an active civic worker, discussed "The Meaning of Volunteer Service". Mrs. Douglas Presley expanded the general topic of giving volunteer service in nursing homes.

Similar training programs are planned for the future, but volunteers are invited to join the project at any time. In addition to Mrs. Presley, those interested may contact Mrs. Varnell, Mrs. Jorgenson at the Texas Department of Public Welfare, or Mrs. Tressie Langston, Associate County Home Demostration Agent, who is coordinating the program through the Extension Service.

The Rock Scene

The Flower that Bloomed at Woodstock Has Wilted

NEW YORK (AP) — The flower that bloomed at Woodstock has wilted.

Two years ago, 400,000 rock fans jammed an Upstate New York alfalfa field in a massive demonstration of love and peace as a way of life.

But now, disillusionment with the rock scene has spread far and wide. Rock performers have turned money mad. The deaths of some prominent rock stars and the ecology movement's call for purity have turned many young people off drugs, and the music itself is undergoing drastic alterations.

The announcement by rock impresario Bill Graham recently that he would close his two emporia of live music, Fillmore East in New York and Fillmore West in San Francisco, was seen as heralding an end of an era in rock.

The groups who once were willing to brave the rain and mud of Woodstock to play, had turned, Graham said, into highly structured corporations demanding higher and higher payments for their services.

Top bands, like the Jefferson Airplane and Sly and the Family Stone, command high fees as high as $50,000 for a single night's performance, and, Graham charged, income has taken a precedence over music.

Woodstock was in many ways the beginning of an era, an assertion by American youth that they had their own culture and their own way of celebrating.

Woodstock was the end also, because no matter what its success was, the myth it created could never be matched by the reality of any successor.

The next major festival in Altamont, Calif., was a free concert offered by the Rolling Stones. Members of the Hell's Angels motorcycle gang were hired to keep the crowd under control and before the evening was over one youth was dead.

While Altamont may have been taken as a warning, the attractions of the outdoor concert especially when compared to the smaller incomes provided by indoor performances, were too obvious to the big time artist.

"He'd rather play the one concert with 20,000 people and spend the other three days resting on his yacht," Graham complained.

The year of the rock fest was 1970:

Love Valley, Goose Lake, Strawberry Fields, Powder Fields, Powder Ridge, Buffalo Party Convention and Roast, Beaufort Water Festival ...

However, only 18 of 48 major festivals scheduled came off, according to Jon Northland, assistant editor of the rock weekly, Rolling Stone.

"The major reason is political," he said. "The day after the festival is announced, the city council and police come up with some emergency ordinance that makes it impossible to hold it."

Promoters also discovered that there were financial problems. The performers wanted more. Radical groups asked for a cut. The fans felt they were being exploited and that music should be free.

Don Friedman watched his Randall's Island Festival in New York City crumble under pressure from radicals until the doors were finally thrown open to the public.

"The love, peace thing of Woodstock has gone out," Friedman said. "It's been replaced by anarchy, complete total anarchy."

In the meantime, a new musical style emerged to challenge rock. The ear-splitting roar of 10,000 watts of amplification have begun to give way to the soft strum of nylon guitar strings.

Quiet on Campus Now

Houston's Violent Reactions to War Revisited

(EDITOR's NOTE: Last spring the Cambodian military action touched off violent reactions in Houston as elsewhere. But this spring, while anti-war militants have been as active as ever in the North, the University of Houston campus has been relatively calm. This report explores why.

By JIM BARLOW
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—A year ago Friday, about 300 University of Houston students, angered because the university refused to close down in mourning for students killed at Kent State University, staged a violent confrontation.

The students occupied buildings, squirted campus guards and students attempting to attend classes with fire extinguishers, and forced security officers to free an anti-war leader they arrested.

After about two hours, the students withdrew when informed they would be arrested if they did not disperse.

But this year the campus has been quiet. The nearest thing to a confrontation came when Gov. Preston Smith, campaigning for re-election last October, walked out of a scheduled speech after students yelled when he attempted to speak.

The students were chanting "Free Lee Otis," referring to black militant Houston leader Lee Otis Johnson who was imprisoned for 30 years after giving a marijuana cigarette to an undercover agent.

Smith, who later said he didn't know anything about the case, thought the students were chanting "frijoles," he said, and walked out after standing at the rostrum for a few seconds.

What is the anti-war movement doing now on campus?

"Absolutely nothing," says Edwy Lee, a member of the English faculty.

"Last spring, immediately after the Cambodian invasion, there were lots of students turned out for a peace rally at the University Center. Recently, one of my students asked me to speak at an anti-war movement and there were maybe 15 to 20 people there, and many of them were there out of curiosity," he said.

Dr. Bob Wren, another English teacher, says the anti-war movement is still strong on campus, but it has changed, dramatically.

"While opposition to the war has never been greater, the very breadth of support against the war has reduced the interest of the more radical student," he said. This has reduced violence, he said.

"When the thrust of the antiwar movement is in the hands of the more moderate community, the tactics reflect that more moderate group. The people who feel deeply frustrated because of the lack of polarization have moved on to other things."

Jeannette Tracy of Houston is a member of the student mobilization committee, a group, she says, including persons of every political stripe who have agreed to unite on opposition to the war.

She says anti-war movement is not dead on the UH campus, but that it has changed.

"To say that the student movement is dead, that we're no longer accepted on campus, is ridiculous. This campus is more activist now than ever before. We are just learning how to say things the most effective way we can," Miss Tracy said.

University of Houston students have held on-campus rallies, sponsored speakers and films and joined in anti-war demonstrations in Austin last year and to the recent April 24 massive demonstration in Washington she said.

Local Boy Makes Good

Ted Norris Lauded for Research at UT

TED NORRIS
. . . UT Researcher

GALVESTON — Someday physicians might prescribe certain kinds of home lighting—or music, or certain odors—to treat sexual problems.

Sterility, menstrual irregularities or even the development of a child might call for a certain sort of illumination to shine on the patient for given periods of time.

Farfetched?

A young University of Texas Medical Branch researcher doesn't think so. Ted Norris, candidate for his PhD in anatomy this spring, was lauded at the 84th American Association of Anatomy's meeting in Philadelphia this month for a step toward making most biology textbooks obsolete.

The texts call the pineal a "pea-sized structure attached to the brain just above the cerebellum with no endocrine function" or any other function so far as medicine or science has been able to determine, until very, very recently.

Norris, and other pinealogists, thinks the pineal has functions and that it is affected by light and other environmental factors. "It is a little-known gland," he admits. "Ask the average medical student what he knows about the pineal and he will probably laugh and say, 'you mean the seat of the soul?'".

Students with historical inclinations might remember that the French philosopher Descartes came up with that catchy phrase, but they are not apt to be impressed by the pineal gland. It is thought to be vestigial, a remnant of tissue no longer necessary to the development or health in today's man.

The young turks of science are out to change all that. "It has become clear in just the past few years that the pineal might be instrumental in the body's response to environmental changes," Norris emphasizes. "Not only have the seasonal reproductive cycles of many animals been shown to be due to lighting changes mediated through the pineal, but environmental odors might even be pineal-mediated in olfactory influence on reproduction.

"Other areas of the environment may influence the pineal-regulated responses," he said. "It is possible that a woman with certain reproductive disorders might, in a few years, have her doctor prescribe some type of lighting (e.g. a specific wave length, intensity or source) to ameliorate her problem? As more definitive criteria for the assessment of pineal function are found and as techniques to gauge those criteria become more and more sophisticated, answers must surely be found.

"For now, the grandiose visions of pineal workers must be gradually, unveiled through the step-by-step plodding of the due processes of investigation.

"Only now is basic research beginning to be able to say what the pineal is doing and even less, as yet, about how it is doing it," Norris said.

The pineal elaborates at least four substances, Norris reports, and his dissertation concerns the effects of three out of the four, which appear to be a kind of trigger to the trigger that influences the other endocrines in the delicate timing necessary to growth and reproduction.. "It is my premise that the pineal principles alter reproductive function at the ovarian level in addition to altering the gonadotrophin output of the pituitary gland," he said. "My work shows that two, and possibly a third, of the four pineal extracts tested have a direct effect on the reproductive development of animals which have had their pituitary glands excised. More than one pineal substance, therefore, has a direct effect on the reproductive system."

Furthermore, the tiny pineal, hidden away in the recesses at the back of the skull, would seem to be receptive—photo-receptive—to light directed through pathways from the eyes.

Not only light affects the pineal, Norris believes. He asks: "Could sterility in a man or insufficient height in a growing child be altered by specific environmental background music — a placid Debussy or stark Stravinsky?"

The young scientist was born in Corpus Christi. He graduated from Corsicana High school (1963) and attended the University of Alabama, at Huntsville and Athens College, also in Alabama before earning his BA at Abilene Christian College (1967). He has written or coauthored eight publications, including the paper which won him the current accolade of America's anatomists: "The Ovary As a Potential Target Organ for Pineal Principles".

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Norris, 2028 Enfield Drive.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Constance Prosser Mellon and Peter E. Burrell of Newmarket, England, plan to marry this summer. She is the widow of financier and philanthropist Richard King Mellon.

Burrell is director of the government-owned National Stud of the United Kingdom, an organization dedicated to improving horse breeding.

Announcement of their engagement has been made by the business offices for Mrs. Mellon and her four children. The time and place of the wedding were not announced.

It will be the third marriage for Mrs. Mellon, an expert horsewoman who is in her early 60s. She married Mellon in 1936 after an unsuccessful marriage to Vance McCaulley. Mellon died last June 3.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Apollo 14 astronaut Edgar D. Mitchell will receive an honorary doctorate of engineering degree next Monday at commencement exercises of his alma mater, Carnegie-Mellon University.

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Sir Francis Chichester's unsuccessful try at sailing alone 4,000 miles across the South Atlantic in 20 days has ended here.

The 69-year-old yachtsman sailed into Plymouth Tuesday night. He sailed from Plymouth on Dec. 18 for the South Atlantic bid, but failed to cover the distance in the time he had set for himself.

Sir Francis arrived in San Juan del Norte, Nicaragua, 22½ days after leaving Bissau, Portuguese Guinea, in West Africa. He had described his goal as the yachtsman's "four-minute mile."

hints from Heloise

By HELOISE

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is an idea I think your male readers would like to know about.

In our area the water is extremely hard and the head of our shower was continually getting clogged up.

I finally got fed up with it, and tired of paying high prices for heads that didn't last. I borrowed the little rubber spray gadget (inexpensive at supermarkets) from my wife's kitchen sink and stuck it on the shower pipe.

I now have an ideal shower head.

It is adjustable . . . put the little lever one way and I have a good wide spray . . . turn the lever the opposite way for a solid stream; halfway and there is a good heavy spray.

Since the gadget is made out of rubber it can be turned toward the wall until the water is adjusted to the desired temperature. After showering it can be bent to rinse the soap suds off the shower walls.

My wife is happy now that she doesn't have to clean up after me.

Since some shower pipes are larger than others, the little gadget can be enlarged with a sharp knife. They can also be purchased in colors to match the bathroom decor.

Shower Happy

Hear ye, gals! This man has a terrific idea. It's not only the female of the species that saves money, but also the male. Right?

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

May I contribute a hint that the gardeners might like to try?

I save all my plastic containers and cut off the tops and bottoms. When setting out plants, tomatoes, cucumbers, or any that need protection, I just slip this band over them and push it into the ground.

This leaves only the top open for sun and rain. If the sun is too hot at first, just lay a fern or branch over the top, or a piece of nylon net. It works beautifully. Plants don't have a setback at all.

Tin cans wouldn't work because they absorb too much heat and burn the plants.

Cynthia O.

DEAR HELOISE:

For a quick, jiffy-press of your little girl's hair ribbons and scarves, just steam them.

Bring your tea kettle to a full rolling boil and hold the articles to be pressed in front of the steam escaping from the spout.

Hold them for a second or two in the steam and then gently pull them straight. They'll be dry in a few minutes and ready to adorn your daughter again.

Mrs. B. A. Blake

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a tip on how to wash your car.

Simply let your auto stand out in a good, hard, soaking rain for awhile. Then let the sun automatically shine, dry and polish it.

Stand back and take a look. You'll be pleased and surprised at the smooth job. And, it doesn't cost "nothin."

Moss Stepp

DEAR HELOISE:

My mother-in-law keeps a block under the far end of her dish drainer tray. The water runs off the tray beautifully instead of collecting in a puddle under the dishes.

Stiles Gets Petroleum Institute Fellowship

Fifteen North Central Texas area teachers, including one from the Corsicana area, were named to receive fellowships to attend the Fourteenth Annual Petroleum Institute for Educators to be held June 14 - July 2 at the University of Houston.

Announcement of those selected was made by Mr. R. C. Ingram, Humble Oil and Refining Co., North Central Texas area Institute Chairman for the Oil Information Committee of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn.

The Corsicana teacher is Mr. Don Stiles. Others include Mrs. Carol Jean Davis, Denison; Mrs. Peggy W. Davis, Dallas; Mrs. Conni Elkins, Carrollton; Mrs. Rose Glendinning, Denton; Miss Elizabeth Innis, Dallas; Mrs. Della Loree Perry, Dallas, Mr. William R. Reynolds, Irving; Mr. Bobby G. Rexrode, Sherman; Mr. Ernest R. Stull, Irving; Mr. Joseph P. Thomas, Fort Worth; Mrs. Linda G. Ward, Garland; Mrs. Joe (Glenda) Whisler, Dallas; and Mr. Terry B. Dillard, Garland.

Mr. Stiles teaches American History and speech at Corsicana High School. He earned his B.A. in the field of History and English at North Texas State University.

The Petroleum Institute, designed particularly for science, mathematics and social studies teachers, will be coordinated this year by Dr. Silas Schirner, professor of education, University of Houston. Lectures, provided by experts from the oil industry, will include exploration, production, manufacturing, transportation, marketing and research. Three hours of graduate credit in the field of education are granted upon successful completion of assignments.

The Petroleum Institute, Mr. Ingram said, is to provide a broadened understanding of oil and gas as important energy sources, and to develop an awareness of the industrial importance of the petroleum industry in Texas.

North Central Texas area contributors to the Petroleum Institue are: Atlantic Richfield Co., Aztec Oil & Gas Co., Core Laboratories, Inc., Dresser Industries, Inc., General American Oil Co. of Texas, Roy Guffey Drilling Co., Halliburton Services, Hunt Oil Co., Humble Oil & Refining Co., J. A. Humphrey, Lone Star Gas Co., Main Street Charities, Inc., Otis Engineering Corp., and Texas Pacific Oil Co.

Local Physician Named Honorary Member of TMA

HOUSTON—A Corsicana physician has been honored by the Texas Medical Association.

Voted into honorary membership by his colleagues during the Association's 104th annual meeting here was Dan B. Hamill, M.D.

To be eligible for honorary membership, a physician must have been a member for at least 40 years or have contributed notably to the advance of ethical medicine.

Local Car Salesman To Be Honored

DALLAS, TEX.—James Joyner Jr., Goines-Weatherby Ford, Corsicana, Tex., will be among Ford Dealership salesmen honored for outstanding sales performance during 1970 at a banquet here on Saturday, May 8.

Charles J. Soderquist, Dallas Ford district sales manager, said a select number of Ford dealership salesmen will be presented a 300-500 Club membership award. The Ford 300-500 Club was founded in 1950 to recognize outstanding Ford slaesmen throughout the country.

Mrs. Soderquist said the average 300-500 Club member sold nearly $750,000 worth of automotive merchandise in 1970 to qualify for the national honor.

Crackdown On Speeders Told Here

Corsicana police have begun a "crackdown" on speeders and other violators of traffic laws, Acting Police Chief Don Massey revealed Monday "in an effort to cut down on some of the accidents we have been having."

Complaints Investigated

Corsicana police answered two complaints of alleged assault and checked a telephone harassment complaint late Friday and early Saturday with no arrests made pending formal complaints being filed with a court so warrants could be issued.

Officers reported they advised Mrs. Louise Rios, 213 E. Oakgrove Rd., and Tommy Anderson, 19, Rice, arrests could not be made until they filed complaints with a justice court leading to issuance of warrants. Police said Mrs. Rios complained that three men had beat up her husband late Friday night. Anderson notified police another youth known to him had hit him in the side of the head as he stopped in town at a traffic signal. Police quoted him as saying a "gang" of boys had thrown objects at his car earlier and one approached his car at the signal and hit him through the open window.

Early Saturday police investigated a complaint from Sam C. McDonald, 1312 E. 3rd Ave., of a harassing telephone call. He gave the police the name of a man he suspected made the call.

MARVELLOUS PROPAGANDA

LONDON (AP) — Maggie Nelson and her pop group cut their first disc. But unlike other groups in the pop world, Maggie's 25-strong band is called "Old Age Pensioners"—each is over 70 years old. The disc is a protest song, "Give Us the Right to Live," about pensioners' low living standards. "It's marvellous propaganda," 79-year-old Maggie said.

Districts

district carved for him, was left in Austin, Congressman J. J. Pickle's district.

Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana would gain Grayson, Fannin and Hunt counties but lose Rusk, Shelby, Cherokee and parts of Panola counties.

Parker, Castro, Bailey, Lamb and Hale counties were removed from Price's district; Monteague, Cooke, Wise and Denton from Purcell's district; and the remaining counties of the two districts combined into one district.

Rep. Olin Teague of College Station would gain Hill, Limestone, Robertson, Houston, Trinity, Polk and Angelina counties and lose Washington, Waller, Austin and Fort Bend counties.

Republican Rep. Bill Archer of Houston, Democrats Bob Casey, and Bob Eckhardt of Houston and Jack Brooks of Beaumont and a new congressman would run at large in Harris, Fort Bend, Brazoria, Galveston, Chambers and Jefferson counties.

Rep. J. J. Pickle of Austin would lose Williamson, Wharton and Jackson counties and gain Washington, Austin and Waller counties.

Rep. W. R. Poage of Waco would gain Williamson, Hill, Hamilton, Mills, San Saba, Llano, Lampasas and Burnet counties and lose Robertson and Limestone.

Rep. John Young of Corpus Christi's district would lose some of Nueces County and all of Brazoria County and gain Wharton, Jackson, Goliad, Bee and Live Oak counties.

Rep. Eligio de la Garza of McAllen would lose Zapta and gain Duval and Jim Wells counties and the part of Nueces County Young lost.

Rep. Richard White of El Paso would gain Odessa out of Ector County and lose Presidio, Brewster, Terrell, Pecos and Ward counties.

Rep. Omar Burleson of Abilene would gain Dickens, King, Knox, Baylor, Archer, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Borden, Young, Jack, Parker and Scurry counties and lose Coke, McCulloch, Sterling, Glasscock, Hamilton, Mills, Concho, San Saba, Lampasas, Menard, Mason, Llano, and Burnet counties.

Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock would add Parmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Hale and the outskirts of Odessa in Ector County and lose Motley, Garza, Borden and Scurry counties.

Rep. Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio would retain the central portion of Bexar County.

Rep. O. C. Fisher of San Angelo would get a more westerly part of Bexar County and add Mason, McCulloch, Menard, Concho, Coke, Sterling, Glasscock, Ward, Pecos, Terrell, Brewster, Presidio, Maverick, Zavala and Medina and lose Ector County.

Rep. Abraham Kazen of Laredo would gain Zapta and lose Duval, Jim Wells, Maverick, Zavala, Live Oak, Bee and Goliad counties.

Wilson

congressmen running at large in Houston...there's a little county called Panola on the Louisiana border that only has 16,000 people in it, but they split it in half...they split Ector County in half in order to divide the Republicans...and I just think the whole thing is absurd on the face of it. But what rally burns me is that they have redistricted not according to the laws of logic and not to benefit the people by putting counties with economic and cultural things in common in the same district, but rather to serve the political amibitions of individuals."

Wilson said he expects the full House to approve the redistricting measure tomorrow. "They're strictly a rubber stamp for the leadership over there—all but about 30 of them...".

The Senator says "I may run for the Senate again; I don't know. If I do run, I'd like to run in Navarro County, because I've always gotten along well with the people there. But I doubt that, in redistricting, Navarro County would stay in (his district), but I do think it's illogical for Navarro County to be in the same district with the counties on the Sabine River (in deep East Texas)."

Rep. Jack Hawkins told The Daily Sun "It (the House's proposed redistricting plan) sounds pretty good to me." He noted that Cong. Teague's area would be changed to District 18 in number (instead of the present District 6), with the district losing Austin, Waller, Washington, and Ft. Bend Counties, and picking up Angelina, Limestone, Trinity and Houston.

As to whether the House will adopt the plan, Rep. Hawkins said "It's just owing to how much complaint there is. Really, to me, it gives Olin Teague a better district (although) he may have other ideas about it. I just think he gets along better with (the counties farther north) than some of those counties he's losing down there."

Rep. Hawkins said "As far as I can tell, I'll get to keep the same three counties (Navarro, Freestone and Limestone) and will probably have Falls County added onto it..It looks like Sen. Wilson will lose Navarro County..." He said redistricting for state representatives and senators is under way now and noted "It's gotta come quick, because we've just got a couple of more weeks in session."

FTC Overrules Grocery Store 'Rain Checks'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has ruled a grocery store advertising sales must have enough goods on hand to meet reasonable demand at the special price.

A grocery chain may not use such disclaimers as "not all items available in all stores" to get around the ruling, the FTC held Wednesday. And providing "rain checks" for later use at sale prices will not meet the test.

The regulation is effective July 12.

The commission said in the future it plans to apply the same principle to other advertised commodities, apparently meaning the ruling will be extended to such businesses as department, drug and hardware stores.

"What we're looking for," said Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection, "is a store that systematically advertises a product and then consistently doesn't have the product on the shelves at the advertised price."

Failure to abide by the new rule could be punishable as an unfair trade practice and subject the offender to civil penalties.

The ruling arises from a 1967-68 study of 137 stores operated by 10 grocery chains in San Francisco and Washington.

Eleven per cent of advertised items were not available in most stores, the study showed, and only eight of the 137 outlets checked had every advertised item.

Fewer advertised products were available in low-income areas than in wealthier sections. And nearly 10 per cent of the specials were marked at prices above those in the sales advertisements.

The FTC said the new rule excuses a retailer if demand for advertised specials exceeds reasonable expectations, or if he can prove the stock was unavailable through no fault of his own.

Striker Injured!!!

ENNIS—Bobby Chapman, 19, member of Local 439, was the victim of an apparent hit-and-run accident at 4:45 p.m. here Wednesday, while walking the picket line in front of Ennis Business Forms Major Media plant.

Marshall Obie Freeman reported today that the driver of a white panel truck, the one that allegedly hit Chapman, had been located.

The woman reportedly works for EBF and was escorted to work by local police this morning.

The Union plans to file charges in Waxahachie sometime today, a Local 439 source reported.

Chapman was taken by ambulance to Ennis Municipal Hospital after the mishap but was released later.

Hospital sources say Chapman suffered only minor abrasions.

Promotes Era

Navarro County Native Active In Community Improvement

JEAN MCDANIEL DICK

Barry residents may take some satisfaction in knowing that it was partly the work of a Navarro County native that placed Era in Cooke County first in the recent Texas Community Improvement Program contest in Agriculture Extension District Four, in which Barry was ranked a close second.

Mrs. Bennie Jean McDaniel Dick, who kept records of Era community activities and improvements for the contest in which the Cook County town has participated for a number of years, was reared in Richland. She is the daughter of former District Clerk Walter McDaniel and Mrs. McDaniel.

Navarro Countians will be interested to know that through Mrs. Dick's scrapbook presentation of improvements in her community, Era advanced to the state competition and has now been selected as one of four communities to compete for the state title. Some 300 communities over Texas entered the competition in April 1970.

A busy wife and mother, Jean Dick teaches in the Era Consolidated School where her husband Hal is superintendent. Their two sons, Mark and West, are active in all elementary activities at the school. Both winners of county spelling bee contests, the boys play piano, guitar and violin and are active in sports and Boy Scout.

As educators, Jean and Hal Dick are active in all facets of community life in Era. The entire family is active in the First Methodist Church there. Mrs. Dick sings in the adult choir and also sponsors a youth choir which entertains on holidays in the convalescent home in Gainesville.

Already involved in the myriad tasks which fall to interested young mothers in any community, Mrs. Dick knew when she accepted the post of secretary of the Community Improvement Program in Era that her greatest responsibility would be to compile a book reflecting all the activities of the area that represented an improvement or an asset to the community in any way.

To Jean Dick, that meant gathering information first-hand. She became a photographer, journalist and artist and "burner of the midnight oil" to compile the record book to be sent to Austin to reflect the year's work of residents of the Era area.

Twenty books were selected from the 300 submitted, and Barry and Era were both included in this district. Record books of 12 communities were reentered at Austin this week, and the margin has narrowed down to communities in Cook County (Era), Hopkins County, Eastland County and Atascosa County.

Era's plans now are to entertain approximately 300 guests and judges next Tuesday, who will tour the area and see in person the improvements which they had selected as outstanding from studying the book Mrs. Dick had compiled through interest and concern for her school, church, community and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel, of course, plan to be on hand for the occasion. They state that their daughter has extended an invitation to Barry residents and any one in this area to visit Era next Tuesday and have dinner with her and her friends.

The Texas Community Improvement Program, cosponsored by the electric utility companies in Texas and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, is designed to stimulate individual, family and community effort toward community improvement.

Participating communities are judged on organization, general appearance, health and recreation services and facilities, agriculture improvements, the standard of living, social involvement of its citizens and plans for long range community improvement.

The bride-elect will be a spring graudate of Kerens High School. The future bridegroom, a graduate of Oxnard High School in California, is employed by Curtis Mathes Manufacturing Co. in Athens.

Friends and relatives of the couple are invited to the wedding which is scheduled for May 14 at 8 p.m. in the First Assembly of God Church in Kerens. A reception will follow the ceremony at the National Guard Armory Building at Kerens.

Barry Takes Second-Place TCIP Award

Judges today announced that Barry has placed second in the Texas Community Improvement Program contest in agriculture extension district four.

Barry will receive a second place cash award of $75 and an engraved certificate. Era in Cook County placed first; Rio Vista in Johnson County, third; Woodbine in Cook County, fourth and Cottonwood in Kaufman County, fifth.

Co-sponsored by the electric utility companies in Texas and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the program is designed to stimulate individual, family and community effort toward community improvement.

Barry was judged on community organization, general appearance, health and recreation services and facilities, agriculture improvements, the standard of living, the social involvement of its citizens and plans for long range community improvement.

During the two hours of judging Thursday morning, the judges toured the community and then received oral reports from officials and citizens of Barry.

Mrs. Jackie Boswell presented a slide presentation on home and town improvements. She pointed out that there are very few homes that are not improved each year.

Mayor John Reed presented a report on community activities. He said that everyone is encouraged to participate.

Noel Furra, who presented the agriculture report, told the judges that of the 20,000 acres in the community, 75 per cent is used for crops and 25 per cent is used for pasture land. He also noted the sound conservation practices conducted by land owners such as waterways, contour farming, and crop rotation.

Dan Nicholson who presented the cattle report said that registered Charloalis, Angus and cross bred cattle are raised. He pointed out that owners conduct a vacination program to maintain a lower rate of disease.

Raymond Marr, 14, presented the youth activities in the community.

James Watson told the judges that future improvements scheduled include completing the sanitary landfill, planting shrubs along the highway, development of a low rent housing project, construction of a new Masonic Hall, development of a house trailer park and the removal of sub-standard vacant houses.

After the presentations, one of Barry's famous fish dry dinners was served.

Officers of the Barry Community Center Organization Program are James E. Watson, president, Marshall Massingale, vice president, Mrs. Mary Joe Watson, secretary, Mrs. Marcia Braley, Miss Wanda Harris, reporter, Mrs. Bula Mitchell, and Mrs. Ethelene Nicholson, hospitality chairman.

Judges were Ted Martin, district agriculture agent, Mrs. Tom Joyce Cunningham, district home demonstration agent, and Don Bynum, information specialist, all of Denton.
